

Production Diagram

The diagram shows an approach, and idea, about the progression, and development of a project. From brief - focused, starting point - the project expands outwards - developing, including, and encompassing. The wider the expansion, the greater the potential for innovation, and the greater the risk involved.

The distance, growth, and defined focussing in point, begins at line - B. A point, at which the project, through, or because of, internal or external factors (often, time - a deadline, or key delivery, presentation point.) demands that the project focuses inwards, and the outward energy stops - slows, subsides.

The reduction forces a staggered, series of focusing inward, the project tightens, strengths, strengthens, and the ideas reduce and compress to final deliverables - shown at position - C.
