Blog / project proposal

Start with a description of the project, in my own style.

Project description

Recipes for Baking Bread is a short film project that was conceived during my previous film, The Accident. During research for the film I came across material relating to Holodomor, a series of famines that took place in Ukraine in the early 1930's. My own family were Ukrainian and it was a complete surprise that although these events had taken place in living memory of my grandparents, had never been discussed.

I began to think about family histories, stories, the memories that we hold and share. A lot of East European history is described with a sense of paranoia and fear that made it difficult for people to speak openly,
